Theater District Heats Up

The Theater District is heating up in the month of January and the Theater District Parking Garage is in the center of it all.

Jones Hall kicked off the month with three performances from the "Rhinestone Cowboy" himself, Glen Campbell, who performed with the Houston Symphony Pops. The Houston Symphony follows that up with its rendition of Beethoven's Triple, which runs January 18, 19, 20.

Not to be outdone, the Wortham Center's Brown Theater will feature the Houston Grand Opera's performance of Lucia di Lammermoor on January 16, 19, 22, 25, and 31. The Houston Grand Opera will also begin performances of The Merry Widow, which opens January 30.

The Alley Theatre features the classic Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf, which begins January 10 through the end of the month.

At the Hobby Center for the Performing Arts, they were Bringin' da Noise, Bringin' da Funk to start the New Year off right. The middle of the month has the production of Blast!, the play followed by Theater Under the Stars production of My Fair Lady, which begins January 30.

Verizon Wireless Theater adds shows to the mix with an extremely varied schedule of shows. January kicks off with the Pink Floyd Laser Spectacular on January 11 followed by the comedy of Carrot Top on January 18. The month continues with the musical sounds of Mystical on January 24 and Coldplay on January 28.

Access Card holders should note that their monthly fee includes access to the Theater District Parking Garage seven days a week, 24 hours a day, including special events.
